

Meet Author Janice Cole Hopkins

Thurs., Aug. 04, 5:00 – 7:30 p.m.

Lawrence Memorial Public Library
Windsor, NC

Cleared for Planting is the first book in the Appalachian Roots series. All the books have definite endings, but they should be read in order to prevent spoilers.

*All the author's profits go to a scholarship fund for missionary children.

The second novel, Sown in Dark Soil, begins on a plantation in Anson County and moves to the North Carolina mountains.

Janice Cole Hopkins

Janice grew up in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains and taught at Oakboro School in Stanly Co. She's written and published in over 40 magazines, but she always dreamed of publishing a historical novel. That dream is coming true. She now has four published novels, and the fifth is on its way.

You can follow Janice on facebook, twitter, and her website at www.JaniceColeHopkins.com

Uprooted by War takes place during the Civil War with the same characters readers have come to love.

When Winter Is Past is a new story with different characters set in colonial Pennsylvania.